KEY PROJECTS

Investigate Pokémon Game | Web App

July 2026 - Present

Personal Project

- Developed an interactive Pokémon guessing game that retrieves live character data from the PokéAPI and dynamically selects a randomized target for each game.
- Built a progressive clue system that validates player guesses, identifies Pokémon associated with incorrect Pokédex numbers, and reveals up to five contextual hints before enabling a give-up option.
- Implemented multi-state game logic for active gameplay, incorrect guesses, successful guesses, surrender conditions, result displays, and game resets.

Table Talk

September 2025 - December 2025

Brigham Young University - Idaho

- Developed a multiplayer web application that enabled users to join game sessions through browser-based room codes and participate from mobile devices.
- Implemented real-time game-state synchronization using Socket.IO, allowing player responses and host actions to update across connected devices.
- Deployed the application to Render and collaborated within a three-person team, utilizing AI-assisted development tools to troubleshoot issues and accelerate feature implementation.
